KANKOWSKY APPEARS AT THE INQUEST. EXCITEMENT IN THE NEW-JERSEY TOWNS OVER THE ALLEGED MURDERER-NEW CHARGES AGAINST HIM-BURIAL OF THE MURDERED WOMAN.

The arrest of Martin Kankowsky, the supposed nurderer of Mina Muller, which took place late Thursday evening, was the cause of a great deal of excitement in the Twentieth Precinct all day yesterday, and much was said in praise of Gustavus A. ide, who, as stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE, traced the suspected man to his hiding place without any aid whatever from the police. At an early hour of the morning, despite the rain and wind, a large crowd of working people and street urchins assembled before the door of the police station hoping to catch a glimpse of the prisoner, who had passed the night in the lock-up. Their patience was not greatly axed, for at 8 o'clock Chief Donovan, of the Hoboken police, and Coroner Wiggins arrived and after a brief consultation with Captain Washburn decided to take Kankowsky before Justice Morgan at the Jefferson Market Police Court.

When the prisoner appeared on the stoop he was prected by a chorus of yells, hoots and hisses which eemed to frighten him, for the officers had the atest difficulty in making him enter the carriage greatest difficulty in making him enter the carriage waiting to carry him away. He was a pitiful sight in every respect, with his dress soiled and disordered, his hair tossed and uncombed and with blood-shot eyes and a scared, haggard look. Most of the ragged boys followed the carriage to Jefferson Market where another crowd of curious persons filled the entrance. The court-room was also crowded and as the prisoner passed down the aisle and saw the sea of faces encompassing him he murmured despairingly in German, "What do they want with me?"

When brought to the stand he was addressed by

When brought to the stand he was addressed by Indge Morgan:

"You are required to go to New-Jersey to answer a charge against you."

The words being repeated in German by an interpreter, the prisoner began shedding tears.

"Are you willing to go without a requisition?" the Justice then asked.

This question the prisoner answered affirmatively. To sign the necessary papers was now the matter of a few minutes, and Kankowsky was then escorted back to the carriage. Before stepping into the corridor, however, a Jersey City officer drew f rth a pair of handcuffs and was about to adjust them, when the prisoner, who had visibly weakened at their sight, besought his captors to spare him that. His wish was grantied, and the whole party, consisting of the Coroner, Chief Donovan and Special Officers Stanton and Fitzgerald, and Kankowsky, then drove to the Christopher Street Ferry. On landing in Hoboken they proceeded to Police Headquarters. The news of their arrival seemed to have preceded them, for their route was crowded with people of all classes, who manifested very strong feeling against the alleged murderer. Cries of "Lynch him?" Shoothim?" were not unfrequent, and twice pistols were displayed. When the s ation had been reached the prisoner, who after leaving Jefferson Market had conducted himself with some degree of coolness if not unconcern, was well searched to make certain that no weapons were concealed about him. After this he was locked up for awhile and given a breakast of fried eggs and black coffee.

May 2, he said, a man who gave his name as name as Louis Kettler, of this city, occupied room No. 1.

The inquest was then adjourned until Monday evening. Ex-Police Commissioner Strier, of Jersey City, became security in the sum of $500 for the appearance of Regina Hertfelder as a winess. Kankowsky was taken out under a guard of police officers. The street was densely growded for two blocks and the prisoner was greeted with cries of "kill him," and "lynch him." He was subsequently taken out of the station by a rear door and sent to the Hudson County Jail in a coach. He was committed, however, only as a witness.

A reporter called at No. 149 Charles-st. last evening and saw Mrs. Clifford, the landlady, who said that to her knowledge the suspected man had neither been visited by a friend nor had brought anybody to her house during his entire stay there.

TALK WITH THE PRISONER'S WIFE.

TALK WITH THE PRISONER'S WIFE. Catrina Kankowsky, the wife of the prisoner, betook herself shortly after 8 o'clock to the Twentieth Precinct Police Station for the purpose of seeing her husband. Finding that he had already been taken away she fell in a faint from which she did not quickly recover. About three hours later a TRIBUNE reporter visited the woman at her home at No. 510 West Thirty-sixth-st. She was crying bitterly with her two little children, a boy of nine and a girl of eight. The room was neatly furnished and scrupnlously clean; on the mantel-shelf stood a small crucitix, while the walls were adorned with two saints pictures. When asked for details regarding her husband's life, Mrs. Kankowsky, who is swarthy, dark-haired and rather handsome, replied in Alsatian patois, wringing her hands:

"Oh, my God; who could imagine that my husband would be guilty of such a crime! No, it is impossible; utterly impossible. We have been married fourteen years, and he has always been a good husband and a good father. He never came home without bringing his children some little present, and he always embraced them tenderly before going to his work.

"I was married to him in 1868," she continued, when she had mastered her emotion, "and we lived afterward in Mulliansen (Alsace), our native place. I worked in a factory while he followed his trade as mason. Last December, after saving a little money, we came to this country. We had no friends here, and my husband had to earn a meagre living by working at odd jobs—anything he could get to do, in short."

"How did you explain his recent ten days' absence and his return with three trunks!"

"Well, during that time he came daily to see me. He told me that he was doing night work, and he brought me what he called the proceeds of it—sums of $1 or $2 at a time, and sometimes more. When he came back for good with the trunks a week ago he said the property belonged to a friend of his and that he had taken it only temporarily for safe keeping. One day he opened one of the trunks and I noticed some woman's clothing inside. When I asked whose it was, he explained that the clothes belonged to the wife of his friend and cautioned me not to touch them."

The body of the mundered woman was removed to this city at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. While the remains were being put into the coffin, the head drapped off, to the horror of all present. After crossing the river the hearse drove to the house of Charles Schmidt, Mrs. Muller's brother, at No. 555 Ninth-ave., where the funeral was to take place. A large number of friends and relatives of the deceased woman gathered here, but Mr. Muller, her first husband, as well as her sister, Annie Schmidt, did not appear. The funeral procession consisted of five carriages, the foremost being occupied by L. Schlesinger, president of the Germania Ehrenritter Lodge, No. 70, to which Mrs. Muller belonged, as well as by some of its members, At about 2 o'clock the process on started, and wended its way toward the Twenty-third Street Ferry. SALES OF THE NEWEST TESTAMENT. AN EARLY AND HEAVY DEMAND ON THE BOOK-SELLERS.

AN EARLY AND HEAVY DEMAND ON THE BOOKSELLERS.

The sales of the revised edition of the New Testament yesterday from the houses of Thomas Nelson & Sons and I. K. Punk & Co., amounted to over 300,000 copies. Every bookseller in New-York of any prominence obtained large quantities of the books and quickly disposed of a generous portion of the stock before sundown. The employes of Thomas Nelson & Sons and I. K. Punk & Co., were busy all night packing up Testaments, and in the early hours of the morning a crowd of jobbers, publishers and agents gathered at the doors. G. Houston, manager for the Nelsons, said yesterday afternoon that telephonic and telegraphic orders were constantly arriving, and orders for 25,000 copies had not yet been filled owing to the demands made upon employes. In the warehouses and store were 100,000 copies, which would be soon disposed of judging from the outlook. The firm had delivered over 250,000 copies yesterday.
The delivery began at 3 o'clock yesterday morning in time to connect with trains, and from half-past 4 to 7 o'clock most of the New-York publishers were supplied. The 20-cent edition was most in demand. A clerk from the house of A. D. F. Kandolph & Co. was on hand at 5 o'clock to get an early copy for the Rev. Dr. W. M. Taylor, of the Broadway Tabernacle Church, who wished to use the Testament to-morrow. Mr. Houston thought there would be a general use of the book in New-York pulpits to-morrow. In regard to the profits on the sales, Mr. Houston said that on the larger orders of cheap books the discount given was such that an actual loss was sustained by the firm, the profit being on the higher-priced editions. As to the Testament being issued by reprinters, he thought that somebody would have some plates for sale by fall.

At the stores of booksellers generally it was ascertained that the demand for the Testament was considerably in excess of the supply. About 75,000 copies were taken by New-York booksellers, 35,000 going to one house. Twenty thousand v The earliest arrivals at the bookstores were clergy-men and theological students. The American share of the Cambridge edition—250,000 copies—was is-sued by Lippincott, of Philadelphia, to the trade at the same time that New-York publishers received the same time that New-York publishers received their copies.

The Rev. Dr. Crosby, one of the American revisers, at the request of the students, read from a copy of the new revision at the University Chapel exercises yesterday merning, and made a few general comments upon the work. In order to explain a very important change he read the first part of the tenth chapter of John. In the authorized version the fourteenth and fifteenth verses read: "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of them. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father." There is no reference in these words to a similar mutual relation existing between Christ and His people that exists between Him and God; but this is clearly brought out in the new version which reads: I am the good shepherd; and I know mine own, and mine own know me, even as the Father knoweth me and I know the Father."

The Chancellor said that he could appeal to the reason and not merely to the prejudice of his hearers, for he was not unaware that much opposition would have to be overcome before the new version would be generally received. Perhaps ten years would be necessary. It took twice that time to make King James's Bible popular. The simple question to be met and answered was: "Is it a better rendering of the Greek than we now have to "If it be no better it should not be received, for no one would wish to change the form of language to which he had been so long accustomed.

STRANGE ACTIONS OF A WOMAN.

A well-dressed woman, carrying a child apparently about one year old, bailed Patrick Murphy, a hackman, at Union-square late Thursday noith and ordered him to take her to Twenty-second-st, and the North River. She seemed much agitated. At a drug store in Eighth-ave, she sent the driver to buy a bottle of soothing syrup. Upon arriving at the foot of Twenty-second-st, she alighted with the child, and walked along the string-piece of the piecr. Several persons heard her mutter, "Pahaw, nothing but lors." The driver prevailed upon her to return the hack, and drove her at once to the Twentieth Street Police Station. Here before a could give her name, she swoened, and was sent at one to the New-York Hospital. She appeared to be about twenty-seven years old. On the way to the hospital she recovered somewhat and sand she lived at the Hotel Branswick. But the statement was denied by the hotel people. To the surgeon in charge she gave her name as Mrs. Lewis. She was found to be suffering from neuralain in the head and hivsteria. Yesterday forenoon a man called at the hospital and removed her in a coach.

One of the gratifying features of the times is that all right-minded physicians gladly use, as an auxiliary, the absorptive treatment—the Holman Pad Co.'s Remedies.

One trial convinces every one of the marked superiority of the "RIVAL SACCE" over all others.
